Plaxton Supreme IV Coach (1980)

45 Seat Bedford Executive Coach with Leyland 400 Series Engine

New to Henderson in July 1980, this vehicle is believed to have operated on behalf of Scotia Travel before passing to West Coast Motors in 1984. It then operated until 2005 with WCM who ran Citylink services throughout Scotland.

The coach operated in the traditional West Coast area, being based at Campbeltown depot until withdrawal in June 2005. At some point prior to her termination of service, the original Bedford engine was replaced by a more powerful and reliable Leyland 400 Series engine.

In 2005 she was bought privately and was returned to the older version of the West Coast Motors livery which she still has today.

After a period of inactivity, this coach was bought by TV & Movie Action Vehicles Scotland and works were completed to restore her to active service. Ongoing work is still being carried out to eventually fully restore her to 'as new' condition.

Since her return to service she has been used in a number of TV & Movie productions and catalogue photoshoots. She has also been used for a number of private and commercial events including weddings and funerals.
